News for the week of April 1, 2019

Department of Internal Medicine 8th Annual Research Symposium.
As a part of the University of Cincinnati Research and Innovation Week, the Department of Internal Medicine will host its 8th Annual Research Symposium on Friday, April 05, 2019 from 8:00 am to 2:30 pm. Please join us at our keynote with Dr. Robert Siliciano of Johns Hopkins, "Curing HIV Infection: Going Beyond N=1. See webpage for more information: http://med.uc.edu/intmed/research/research-symposium

MS-based Metabolomic Profiling.
The COM has begun to offer some MS-based Metabolomic profiling as part of the Proteomics and Mass Spectrometry Core. Currently the core offers quantification of mono, di and trinucleoside phosphates from blood or cell lysates, and have begun to investigate free fatty acid profiling, but would like your input on the next group of compounds to bring on line. Please contact ken.greis@uc.edu and robert.ross@uc.edu to discuss options.

Gallery of Awardees.
Each month, the College of Medicine publicizes those faculty who have been awarded external grants of $100,000/yr. or more in direct costs in a Gallery of Awardees. This month the Gallery of Awardees recognizes Scott M. Langevin, PhD, Evangelia G. Kranias, PhD, James J. Driscoll, MD, PhD, Patrick P.W. Tso, PhD, Michael T. Borchers, PhD, Joseph P. Broderick, MD, Jeffrey D. Schlaudecker, MD, Carl J. Fichtenbaum, MD, and Winston W. Kao, PhD. The Gallery is displayed in the CARE/Crawley Atrium. Please note that it may take 2-3 months before the Gallery of Awardees recognizes new awards due to the processing of data.

Identifying Scholarly Activity and Potential Mentors for Medical Students.
Medical Students interesting in learning more about scholarly activity and potential mentors within a specific department should contact the Department Research Representatives listed @ http://med.uc.edu/academicsupport/research/contact-us
